General Rules as to Criminal Responsibility

Ignorance of law

7. Ignorance of the law does not afford any excuse for any act or omission which would otherwise constitute an offence, unless knowledge of the law by the offender is expressly declared to be an element of the offence.

Bona fide* claims of right

8. A person is not criminally responsible in respect of an offence relating to property, if the act done or omitted to be done by him with respect to the property was done in the exercise of an honest claim of right and without intention to defraud.

Intention: Motive

9. Subject to the express provisions of this Law relating to negligent acts and omissions, a person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission which occurs independently of the exercise of his will, or for an event which occurs by accident.

Unless the intention to cause a particular result is expressly declared to be an element of the offence constituted, in whole or part, by an act or omission, the result intended to be caused by an act or omission is immaterial.

Unless otherwise expressly declared, the motive by which a person is induced to do or omit to do an act, or to form an intention, is immaterial so far as regards criminal responsibility.

Mistake of fact

10. A person who does or omits to do an act under an honest and reasonable, but mistaken, belief in the existence of any state of things is not criminally responsible for the act or omission to any greater extent than if the real state of things had been such as he believed to exist.

The operation of this rule may be excluded by the express or implied provisions of the law relating to the subject.

Presumption of sanity

11. Every person is presumed to be of sound mind, and to have been of sound mind at any time which comes in question, until the contrary is proved.

Insanity

12. A person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission if at the time of doing the act or making the omission he is through any disease affecting his mind incapable of understanding what he is doing, or of knowing that he ought not to do the act or make the omission.

But the person may be criminally responsible for an act or omission, although his mind is affected by disease, if such disease does not in fact produce upon his mind one or another of the effects above mentioned in reference to that act or omission.

Intoxication

13.—(1) Subject to subsections (2) and (3), a person shall not, on the ground of intoxication be deemed to have done any act or made any omission involuntarily, or be exempt from criminal responsibility for any act or omission.

(2) A person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission if at the time of doing the act or making the omission he is in such a state of intoxication that he is incapable of understanding what he is doing, or controlling his action, or knowing that he ought not to do that act or make the omission, provided that the thing which intoxicated him was administered to him without his knowledge or against his will.

(3) When a specific intent is a constituent element of an offence, intoxication, whether complete or partial, and whether intentional or unintentional shall be taken into account for the purpose of ascertaining whether such an intent in fact existed.

Criminal responsibility of children

~~14. A person under the age of seven ten (a) years is not criminally responsible for any act or omission. A person under the age of twelve years is not criminally responsible for an act or omission, unless it is proved that at the time of doing the act or making the omission he had capacity to know that he ought not to do the act or make the omission. A male person under the age of twelve years is presumed to be incapable of having carnal knowledge.~~

14. A person under the age of 14 years is not criminally responsible for any act or omission. (b)

Judicial officers

15. Except as expressly provided by this Law, a judicial officer is not criminally responsible for anything done or omitted to be done by him in the exercise of his judicial functions, although the act done is in excess of his judicial authority or although he is bound to do the act omitted to be done.

Compulsion

16. Except premeditated murder (c) and ~~offences against the State punishable with death, the offences referred to in sections 36 and 37 of this Ordinance, (d)~~ no act is an offence which is done by a person who is compelled to do it by threats which at the time of doing it reasonably cause the apprehension that instant death to that person will otherwise be the consequence; provided that the person doing the act did not, of his own accord or from a reasonable apprehension of harm to himself short of instant death, place himself in the situation by which he became subject to such constraint.

Necessity

17. An act or omission which would otherwise be an offence may be excused if the person accused can show that it was done or omitted to be done only in order to avoid consequences which could not otherwise be avoided, and which if they had followed, would have inflicted upon him or upon others whom he was bound to protect inevitable and irreparable evil, that no more was done than was reasonably necessary for that purpose, and that the evil inflicted by it was not disproportionate to the evil avoided.

Self-defence and the defence of others etc. (e)

17A.—(1) A person (“D”) has a defence to a charge of an offence involving the use of force, if the degree of force used by D is reasonable in the circumstances as D believes them to be for the purposes of—

- (a) self-defence;*
- (b) defence of property;*
- (c) the prevention of crime; or*
- (d) effecting or assisting lawful arrest of an offender or suspected offender or person unlawfully at large.*

(2) A person may rely on the common law defences of self-defence or defence of property, as they apply in England and Wales.

(a) Amended by Ordinance 1/2000 – came into force on 3 March 2000
(b) Section 14 repealed and replaced by Ordinance 12/2006 – came into force on 10 August 2006
(c) Premeditated murder substituted for murder by Ordinance 11/1963 – came into force on 18 April 1963
(d) Amendment inserted by Ordinance 1/2000 – came into force on 3 March 2000
(e) Section 17A & 17B inserted by Ordinance 21/2020 – came into force on 01 August 2020

Reasonable force for purposes of self-defence etc.

17B.—(1) This section applies where in proceedings for an offence—

- (a) an issue arises as to whether a person charged with the offence (“D”) is entitled to rely on a defence within section 17A; and*
- (b) the question arises as to whether the degree of force used by D against a person (“V”) was reasonable in the circumstances.*

(2) The question of whether the degree of force used by D was reasonable in the circumstances is to be decided by reference to the circumstances as D believed them to be, and subsections (3) to (8) also apply in connection with deciding that question.

(3) If D claims to have held a particular belief as regards the existence of any circumstances—

- (a) the reasonableness or otherwise of that belief is relevant to the question whether D genuinely held it; but*
- (b) if it is determined that D did genuinely hold it, D is entitled to rely on it for the purposes of subsection (2), whether or not—*
 - (i) it was mistaken; or*
 - (ii) (if it was mistaken) the mistake was a reasonable one to have made.*

(4) But subsection (3)(b) does not enable D to rely on any mistaken belief attributable to intoxication that was voluntarily induced.

(5) In a householder case, the degree of force used by D is not to be regarded as having been reasonable in the circumstances as D believed them to be if it was grossly disproportionate in those circumstances.

(6) In a case other than a householder case, the degree of force used by D is not to be regarded as having been reasonable in the circumstances as D believed them to be if it was disproportionate in those circumstances.

(7) In deciding the question mentioned in subsection (2), a possibility that D could have retreated is to be considered (so far as relevant) as a factor to be taken into account, rather than as giving rise to a duty to retreat.

(8) In deciding the question mentioned in subsection (2) the following considerations are to be taken into account (so far as relevant in the circumstances of the case)—

- (a) that a person acting for a legitimate purpose may not be able to weigh to a nicety the exact measure of any necessary action; and*
- (b) that evidence of a person's having only done what the person honestly and instinctively thought was necessary for a legitimate purpose constitutes strong evidence that only reasonable action was taken by that person for that purpose.*

(9) Subsections (7) and (8) are not to be read as preventing other matters from being taken into account where they are relevant to deciding the question mentioned in subsection (2).

(10) For the purposes of this section “a householder case” is a case where—

- (a) the defence concerned is the common law defence of self-defence;*
- (b) the force concerned is force used by D while in or partly in a building, or part of a building, that is a dwelling;*
- (c) D is not a trespasser at the time the force is used; and*
- (d) at that time D believed V to be in, or entering, the building or part as a trespasser.*

(11) Where—

- (a) a part of a building is a dwelling where D dwells,*
- (b) another part of the building is a place of work for D or another person who dwells in the first part, and*

(c) that other part is internally accessible from the first part, that other part, and any internal means of access between the two parts, are each treated for the purposes of subsection (10) as a part of a building that is a dwelling.

(12) The fact that a person derives title from a trespasser, or has the permission of a trespasser, does not prevent the person from being a trespasser for the purposes of subsection (10).

(13) This section, except so far as making different provision for householder cases, is intended to clarify the operation of the defences mentioned in section 17A.

(14) In this section and section 17A—

(a) “legitimate purpose” means—

- (i) the purpose of common law self-defence, as it applies in England and Wales,*
- (ii) the purpose of defence of property under the common law as it applies in England and Wales, or*
- (iii) the prevention of crime or effecting or assisting in the lawful arrest of persons referred to in section 17A;*

(b) references to self-defence include acting in defence of another person;

(c) references to the degree of force used are to the type and amount of force used;

(d) references to crime means a crime under the law of the Sovereign Base Areas of Akrotiri and Dhekelia.

(15) In subsections (10) to (13)—

“building” includes a vehicle or vessel;

“premises” includes any place and in particular includes—

(a) any vehicle, ship or aircraft; and

(b) any tent or movable structure;

“dwelling” includes accommodation provided by the Armed Forces as live in accommodation.

Compulsion of husband

18. A married woman is not free from criminal responsibility for doing or omitting to do an act merely because the act or omission takes place in the presence of her husband.

Person not to be twice criminally responsible for same offence

19. A person cannot be twice criminally responsible either under the provisions of this Law or under the provisions of any other Law for the same act or omission, except in the case where the act or omission is such that by means thereof he causes the death of another person, in which case he may be convicted of the offence of which he is guilty by reason of causing such death, notwithstanding that he has already been convicted of some other offence constituted by the act or omission.

Parties to offences

Principal offenders

20. When an offence is committed each of the following persons is deemed to have taken part in committing the offence and to be guilty of the offence, and may be charged with actually committing it, that is to say—

- (a) every person who actually does the act or makes the omission which constitutes the offence;*
- (b) every person who does or omits to do any act for the purpose of enabling or aiding* another person to commit the offence;

(c) every person who aids or abets another person in committing the offence;

(d) any person who counsels or procures any other person to commit the offence.

In the fourth case he may be charged either with himself committing the offence or with counselling or procuring its commission.

A conviction of counselling or procuring the commission of an offence entails the same consequences in all respects as a conviction of committing the offence.

Any person who procures another to do or omit to do any act of such a nature that, if he had himself done the act or made the omission, the act or omission would have constituted an offence on his part, is guilty of an offence of the same kind, and is liable to the same punishment as if he had himself done the act or made the omission; and he may be charged with himself doing the act or making the omission.

Offences committed by joint offenders in prosecution of common purpose

21. When two or more persons form a common intention to prosecute an unlawful purpose, in connection with one another, and in the prosecution of such purpose an offence is committed of such nature that its commission was a probable consequence of the prosecution of such purpose, each of them is deemed to have committed the offence.

Counselling another to commit an offence

22. When a person counsel another to commit an offence, and an offence is actually committed after such counsel by the person to whom it is given, it is immaterial whether the offence actually committed is the same as that counselled or a different one, or whether the offence is committed in the way counselled or in a different way, provided in either case that the facts constituting the offence actually committed are a probable consequence of carrying out the counsel.

In either case the person who gave the counsel is deemed to have counselled the other person to commit the offence actually committed by him.

Definition of accessories after the fact

23. A person who receives or assists another who is, to his knowledge, guilty of an offence, in order to enable him to escape punishment, is said to become an accessory after the fact to the offence.

A wife does not become an accessory after the fact to an offence of which her husband is guilty by receiving or assisting him in order to enable him to escape punishment; nor by receiving or assisting, in her husband's presence and by his authority, another person who is guilty of an offence in the commission of which her husband has taken part, in order to enable that other person to escape punishment; nor does a husband become accessory after the fact to an offence of which his wife is guilty by receiving or assisting her in order to enable her to escape punishment

Punishment of accessories after the fact to felony

24. Any person who becomes an accessory after the fact to a felony is guilty of a felony, and is liable, if no other punishment is provided, to imprisonment for three years.

Punishment of accessories after the fact to misdemeanour

~~(5) The question whether the woman is pregnant or not shall be determined by the Court on such evidence as may be laid before it either on the part of the woman or on the part of the Crown, and the court shall find that the woman is not pregnant unless it is proved affirmatively to their satisfaction that she is pregnant.~~

~~(6) Where on proceedings under this section the Court finds that the woman in question is not pregnant, the woman may appeal to the Supreme court, and that Court, if satisfied that for any reason the finding should be set aside, shall quash the sentence passed on her and instead thereof pass on her a sentence of imprisonment for life.~~
